The problem is the student dissatisfaction with wifi on the USC Columbia campus. These issues manifest in different ways, including frequent interruptions in the network or sometimes even logins not working effectively. The problem focus group is USC students, the problem area is USC campus, the impact is hindrance working online.

Students are unable to work at a consistent and steady pace because of these interruptions and sometimes losing all connectivity altogether.